

LET'S TALK ABOUT MONEY IN WEST AFRICA AND ITS RELATIONS TO ASIA

FROM INDIAN COTTON CLOTH TO A SINGLE CURRENCY
TOYOMU MASAKI (KANAZAWA UNIVERSITY)

January 24th 2018, from 9.00 to 11.00 a.m.
EHESS, Room A07_37
54 boulevard Raspail 75006 Paris

Toyomu Masaki is Professor at the Faculty of Economics & Management of Kanazawa University. She holds a Ph.D in Economics (Kobe University), and DEA of Development Economics (Université de Bordeaux). Since September 2017, she is researching in Europe (Université de Rouen Normandie and University of Cambridge) to conduct for one year her research project supported by the JSPS. Specialized in the West African economy, her research focuses on “money matters” taking colonial history into account. Her recent publications (in Japanese) include: “Export of Indian Guinée to Senegal via France: Intercolonial Trade in the Long Nineteenth Century” in Socio-Economic History, (2015) and “Background to the Establishment of La Banque du Sénégal (1853- 1901)” in a Special Issue on Frontiers of Development Studies on Africa and India, Journal of Economics and Business Administration (2015).